Thank You!

Because of donors like you, Lakeridge Health Foundation has had a tremendous year!

Not everyone can say they work and live in the same community - but alongside many of you, I can. I live in Durham Region and I rely on the same health care services you do. I also believe that the highest quality care should be available right now, right here.

As a resident of Durham Region, I've had the opportunity to see how our work touches the lives of our shared neighbours, friends and colleagues. It's your generosity that makes this possible and I want to extend my sincere thanks. That's why I am thrilled to share our highlights from the past year.

Lakeridge Health Foundation has undergone a major transformation. We have a new look, new staff and a renewed drive to support Lakeridge Health and the critically important services it provides in Durham Region.

This past year we've seen exciting growth and support from our community. In our 2013-2014 year, the Foundation received an incredible 8,503 donations, including 13 pledges of $25,000 or more from individuals and organizations.

We also received two of our biggest gifts ever. RBC Foundation supported family mental health programs in Durham Region with a gift of $325,000 and a life-long Brooklin resident made a transformational commitment of $2 million directed to complex continuing care.

The number of community initiatives raising funds for Lakeridge Health has grown by 22 per cent. These initiatives, combined with our signature events and individual donations, have raised enough to enable the hospital to purchase 42 brand new hospital beds, 56 kidney dialysis machines and countless other pieces of life-saving equipment.

Our hospital can continue to provide excellence, every moment, every day because generous donors like you agree that the health of our community is a top priority.

Thank you donors, volunteers, and sponsors for choosing to give where you live.

The Royal Treatment

Lakeridge Health receives significant gift from RBC Foundation.

This past May, Lakeridge Health Foundation received one of their biggest gifts ever from the RBC Foundation in support of the Hospital's Child, Youth and Family Program.

The RBC Foundation, who has pledged to help 1 million children and youth, committed $325,000 to Lakeridge Health, with the bulk of it -- $250,000 -- supporting the new Child and Youth Mental Health Unit in Oshawa. The remaining $75,000 was split evenly between Bowmanville, Whitby and Port Perry sites to support high priority needs.

Lakeridge Health's Child, Youth and Family Program provides care to children aged 5 to 18 who are suffering from a serious mental health issue. The program will receive about 10,000 visits this year for crisis support, in-hospital care and outpatient therapy.

"There's incredible demand in our community for children's mental health services," says Kevin Empey, President and CEO of Lakeridge Health. "Every month, about 55 children are referred to our therapy services for the first time – and that's only one part of what we do."

The donation will help reduce wait lists and improve frontline services for families and children such as the intensive day program that provides in-hospital academic support for children who are not well enough to attend school.

"RBC is proud to make this commitment to Lakeridge Health's Child, Youth and Family Program," says Travis Capes, Regional Vice President, RBC. "This gift will help ensure that kids in the Durham Region facing mental health issues have access to programs and services giving them hope for a brighter future."

"It's reassuring to know that we've put our money in a great place."

"Donors like RBC give us the financial support to grow, improve and provide care to more kids in Durham Region. Together we can ensure strong, local health care for the families who rely on us."

My Family's Hospital

Perry Monaco celebrates five years cancer-free

As a young father, you don't ever expect to get cancer. You also don't expect to be apart from your family, let alone in isolation.

Five years ago this was a reality for Perry Monaco. Diagnosed with thyroid cancer shortly after his first daughter was born, Perry needed radioactive iodine therapy to survive.

The nature of this treatment meant that Perry had to spend three days in isolation at Lakeridge Health and another two weeks at home, requiring his wife and daughter to move out and for him to recover alone.

Those rough days away from his family are now near-forgotten memories for Perry.

After five years, Perry's health has returned to where it should be, but there is never an "all-clear" with the type of cancer he has. For that reason, it's comforting for him to know he lives in a community with a state-of-the-art cancer centre like we have in Oshawa.

"It disturbs me to think that things could have been so very different, had it not been for the wonderful care and compassion I received at Lakeridge Health when I was ill," reflects Perry.

His experience at Lakeridge Health was so impactful that Perry became a monthly donor. As long-time residents of Durham Region, Perry's family has come to rely on Lakeridge Health for being close to home whenever they need medical care. As a monthly donor, Lakeridge Health can depend on Perry too!

"Lakeridge Health has always been there for my family – that's why I've chosen to be there for them every month by becoming a monthly donor."

Perry Monaco, husband, father and cancer survivor

"Donating a small amount each month is an easy and affordable way to spread your support throughout the year. Becoming a monthly donor for Lakeridge Health will ensure our life-saving equipment and programs can receive the same priority attention your loved ones deserve."

A Lasting Legacy

Long-time resident Lillian Beamish shares her reasons for giving to her local hospital.

If laughter is the best medicine then Lillian (Lil) Beamish will outlive us all. In the quiet retirement community across from Cullen Gardens in her not-so quiet home, the retired General Motors employee and Oshawa-area resident recalls her first experience with Lakeridge Health.

“During the depression we were very poor so when my father got sick and had to go to the hospital we were concerned he might be turned away. Instead, they accepted him with open arms, free of charge,” she explains. “I knew then, this hospital is about caring.”

Many years later and a few visits to that same hospital, including a rewarding visit to the cardiac rehabilitation program and shoulder replacement, Lil has chosen to include Lakeridge Health in her will.

“You only get one legacy,” she says. “We owe it to the community to support our hospital so others can experience the quality health care we’ve always received.”

At 82 years-old Lil remains active in her community. She sits on the executive of the GM Salaried Retirees Association and a handful of other boards and committees. She remains an advocate for community health and well-being.

Lil’s long-time best friend Kay Helleur, the first woman to ever design a golf course in North America, has also made a bequest to Lakeridge Health. “There was no arm twisting involved,” she says. “We both agree, we may not have needed the hospital that much over the years but other people do and will. It’s important to invest in your local hospital.”

Assigning Lakeridge Health as a beneficiary in your will is an easy and affordable way to ensure generations of Durham Region residents will have the very best health care available.

“If you care for the hospital,” says Lil, “it can care for you and the generations after you.”

“We helped build this community. It’s our duty to support it for the future. That’s why Lakeridge Health is part of our gift planning.”
